Christine Lalama, age 33, has been treating for Breast Cancer since September 2002. Christine, her husband, and their daughter traveled to the CFL respite home in Davenport, Florida in February 2009. Reflecting upon her return she had this to say, "I have been dealing with cancer for 6 years. My daughter was only 2 when I was first diagnosed. It's all we have known in our lives. I was able to not focus on cancer, but rather focus on a great memorable trip with my husband and our daughter. It reminded me that even though I have cancer, cancer does not have me. I can still have a great time with my family and do the things the rest of the world can do! Thank you for such an awesome experience. We have made memories the three of us will hold dear forever."
