Shootout at the Shore raises more than $4,000

SEA ISLE CITY – More than $4,000 was raised for the For Pete's Sake Foundation via the Shootout at the Shore three-on-three basketball tournament held Saturday, Aug. 6 at the outdoor basketball courts on JFK Boulevard. The For Pete's Sake Foundation provides respite vacations for adults with cancer.

The tournament included 29 teams featuring players ranging in age from 14 to over 40 competing in four different brackets. Tournament winners were as follows:

Female: Team Preziosi (Audra Woodside, Bella Preziosi, Alayxiah Carr).

Male 17 and under: Team Sky High (Mike Carr, Chris Duffin, Mike Loudon, Bryan Missimer).

Male 15 and under: Team Ball is Life (Brendan Pollick, Colin Pollick, Dom Catalane, Garrett Moretti)

Male 18 and over: Team Win (Sal Yusuff, Walt Taylor, Darron Harper, Daymar Harper).

The tournament was organized by high school seniors Ryan Gill (Seaville), Pat Roberts (Middle Township), Daniel Palombo

Local high school students organized and executed the Shootout at the Shore three-on-three basketball tournament in Sea Isle City last weekend. The event raised money for the For Pete's Sake Foundation.

(Seaville) and Brent Slotoroff (Linwood) in conjunction with the St. Augustine Prep Caritas project developed by Fr. Paul Galetto. The goal is for students to find something they like and develop and execute a community service project that makes the world better. The For Pete's Sake Foundation's founder, Marci Schankweiler, spent her summers in Sea Isle City as a young girl and competed on the outdoor courts on JFK Boulevard in summer basketball leagues.
